PICKAWAY-TWP HAS ROBBERY

Thief Steals Picture Machine Valued At $375 From School House.

Authorities are making every effort to discover the thief of a moving picture machine stolen from the Pickaway-twp school building Monday night. The machine is valued at $375. Nothing else was stolen from the building.

When the theft was reported, authorities at the school were told that there have been 50 machines stolen recently in the state of Ohio, and none has ever been found.

The loss at the Pickaway-twp school was discovered Tuesday when the janitor was sent for the machine.

It was stolen sometime after 10:30 p.m. Monday because there were people there up to that time.

The thief who appeared to be well acquainted with the building, gained entrance through a door in the new building. A glass in a door there had been broken and the new glass had not yet arrived. The opening had been covered over by three thicknesses of heavy cardboard. This had been broken through, and the door opened from the inside.

Prints in the snow showed where the thief had tried other doors and windows around the building before finding a door he could open.

COLORED MEN FACE CHICKEN THEFT CHARGE

Will Be Returned Here Later To Face Possession of Liquor Mark.

Three colored men, Burl Hill, Maplewood-ave, Circleville, Ernest Wright, of Tennessee, and Shilly Graham, alias Nappy Chin, of Columbus, were arrested by local sheriff's authorities at Hill's residence here Wednesday morning and were taken to Chillicothe where they will face charges of stealing chickens. After Chillicothe police have finished with the three men they will be returned to Circleville where they will answer to charges of possessing intoxicating liquor.

The three men were alleged to have stolen seven chickens from Lee Benard, farmer, living five miles this side of Chillicothe on the Scioto Trail. One of the men was said to have been talking to Benard while the other two men went to his chicken house and stole the chickens. They were then thought to have gone to Hill's house here where they planned a party.

They had two chickens dressed and ready to put into the oven for a nice big spread. And chickens wasn't the only thing those gentlemen were going to have at their party. One quart of alleged whiskey was also found in the Hill residence when Deputy Sheriff John G. Ward Jr. and Carl Porter and Deputy Sheriff Wood Ramey of Ross-co, raided the home Wednesday morning.

The three men were questioned extensively in the local sheriff's office and were then taken to Chillicothe where they will answer the charge of stealing chickens. Shilly Graham, alias Nappy Chin, is said to have a record behind him, and about two years ago was said to have nearly shot Ramey, Chillicothe deputy, when Ramey was attempting to arrest him.

ICE AT SQUARE CAUSES WRECK

Automobiles Slip and Slide All Over Road Making Travel Dangerous.

The treacherous ice at Main- and Court-sts. claimed another automobile Wednesday at noon when the truck driven by Archie Wilson of Chillicothe, slid into the Chevrolet of Harold Dresbach. The rear end of the Chevrolet was damaged and the spare tire torn from its rim.

Wilson was driving slowly but could not miss the car ahead of him when his wheels failed to take hold on the ice. The condition of the streets has caused some humorous near mishaps as well as real accidents. When the light changes, those who are going can't get stopped and those stopped can't get going. The women drivers seem to have the more comical expressions on their faces when they apply the brakes, and discover themselves proceeding onto the center of the square. There is no distinction in makes and costs of the automobiles.

"Much Safer in the Air"

ASSISTANT FIRE MARSHAL TALKS IN CITY SCHOOLS

Mrs. Kathryn English Annesbansly, of Columbus, assistant state fire marshal, delivered a fine address to the high school students Wednesday afternoon on "Fire Prevention." Mrs. Annesbansly will be in Circleville Wednesday and Thursday and will give talks at each of the schools.

Following is a part of her address: "Fire Prevention has been 'unfished business' for the American people ever since flames from the O'Leary cowshed spread to 17,000 other buildings in Chicago, took a toll of more than 250 lives, and cost the city $194,000,000 in property damage. There were brave deeds, stark tragedies and tremendous spectacles on that October night in 1871, which date we commemorate as 'Fire Prevention Week.'

Men who profess to know say that 75 to 90 per cent of fires are preventable. Therefore, the state administration has placed the responsibility of reducing fire loss and protection of life under the direction and leadership of Ray R. Gill, the state fire marshal. Out of his office we are working an educational program through the civic organizations, Federated Clubs, Parent-Teachers Association, schools and other mediums of personal contact, teaching personal responsibility in Fire Prevention.

More than 60 per cent of fires occur in homes, a fire every four minutes. In the United States, every day fire takes toll of five schools, five churches, 15 hotels, one hospital, four warehouses, six department stores and 96 farm buildings.

Ohio's fire loss in 1928 was: Number, 9050. Loss $16,203,288. Carelessness with matches, cigars and cigarettes, 1181; loss $1,058,732. Defective flues, grates and stoves, 715; loss $710,083. Stoves and furnaces, 656; loss $1,438,854.

The board faces an almost unsolvable Chinese puzzle. The bids were all taken to the office of the D. W. McGrath Co., in Columbus, architects for the building, where they will be tabulated and gone over until some solution to the puzzle can be reached.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR OPENING OF "YOO HOO"

They assure that the show will live up to its advertising "the snappiest, funniest, and most musical comedy ever staged in Circleville."

Today the elaborate gold metal cloth scenery is being installed on the stage as well as the electrical equipment carried by the "reel" of Miami, and which will illuminate the new foot and flood lights already constructed. The costumes which will be worn by the large cast are being handed out today ready for the dress rehearsal.

Extensive repairs have been made to the furnace in the Memorial building to assure sufficient heat. In fact every effort has been put forth to make "Yoo-Hoo" an attraction which will long be remembered and one which the public will feel was worth more than the price which they have paid.

The seat reservation was opened Wednesday at 8 a. m. in Barre and Nickerson's Hardware store. At that time those holding the advance tickets may exchange them for reserved seats for either night. The seats for the matinee performance on Thursday afternoon will not be reserved. It will also be possible to purchase tickets there if the person has not already secured the advance ticket.

The matinee performance will start at 3:45 p. m. on Thursday as soon as pupils from all schools have had an opportunity to reach the auditorium. The first performances will start at 8:15 p. m.

The voting contest will close the afternoon of the last performance and the prizes awarded on the stage that night by Commander E. Ebert. The drawing of the radio will also take place at the last performance. Those attending other performances are requested to hold their numbers until they learn the winner, as it is not necessary to be present when the drawing takes place.

COURT GIVES SNOOK STAY TILL FEB. 28

New Date of Execution Is Fourth Postponement Co-Ed Slayer Has Won.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22 —Dr. James Howard Snook, confessed and convicted murderer of Miss Theora Hix, his sweetheart-paramour, will not die until at least Feb. 28.

The Ohio supreme court late yesterday granted the former Ohio State university professor another stay of execution until that date, to permit his attorneys to petition the highest tribunal in the land.

In rendering the decision of the state court, Chief Justice C. T. Marshall said: "A majority of the court grants Dr. Snook an extension of his stay until February 28."

The plea in behalf of Snook was made by E. O. Ricketts. He pointed out that unless the state court granted the stay, Mrs. Snook, wife of the condemned man, would be put at considerable expense to send the attorneys to Washington to directly petition the federal court.

CHESTER LOSES
Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., suffered his first defeat in the case of the co-ed's slayer, yesterday by decision of the court.

The new date of execution is the fourth which has been set for the electrocution of Dr. Snook. Judge Henry Scarlett, who heard the case which involved one of the most brutal slayings in the history of the state, sentenced Snook to die on Nov. 29, following his conviction, on Aug. 14.

The court of appeals upheld the conviction but the supreme court granted a stay until Dec. 20, to permit the case to be brought before that body. The court failed to act upon it by that time, and a further stay until Jan. 31, was granted. The decision which was rendered yesterday, extended the execution date for four more weeks.

This latest stay expires three days after the United States supreme court reconvenes. Unless it is able to dispose of the motion for a review before that time, it is possible that that body may grant a further stay.

J. H. ADAMS IS C. C. SPEAKER

Manager of Sturm-Dillard Plant Delivers Firm Constructive Talk.

James H. Adams, of the Sturm & Dillard Gravel Washing Co., addressed the Chamber of Commerce at their regular meeting Tuesday night and told about this new industry in Circleville.

Mr. Adams, being well acquainted with all the details in the operation of the gravel washing plant, vividly explained operations that are necessary to wash the gravel and have it ready to be hauled away in truck or railroad cars. With their equipment and two stone crushers this concern turns out seven kinds of washed gravel and sand and since the plant first started operations their business has grown extensively.

"With the opening up of this large deposit of gravel, and the installation of their washing plant the people of this community now have a source of getting first grade material for building and road work," he stated. During the past year over 30,000 tons of gravel have been hauled on Pickaway-co. roads. "Washed gravel," he said, "is much better for road material than bank run and in the long run is much cheaper."

"During the past two years this firm has paid $175,000 for labor alone," Mr. Adams stated, "and this in addition to the supplies that are purchased in Circleville helps this community." Since operations were started from 40 to 60 people have been employed daily at their plant in addition to over 20 truck drivers who haul gravel from the plant.

"From tests made the deposit of gravel at their location will last at least 15 years and the operation of the plant will be continued just as long as they find it profitable," he said.

REPORT BUS DROVE INTO FAST TRAIN

Victims Are Horribly Mangled Making Identification Almost Impossible.

BEREA, O., Jan. 22 — Eleven school children and a bus driver were killed here today when the Brookpark school bus was rammed and demolished by a fast New York Central mail and passenger train.

Nine of the children and the driver were killed instantly. The bus, driven by John Taylor of Brookpark village, according to observers of the crash, approached the tracks from the south on Sheldon-rd. Frost gathered on the windows of the bus apparently prevented Taylor from seeing the approaching flyer and the bus was hit while directly in the path of the train.

Between 15 and 20 children were riding in the bus on their way to Brookpark school.

The engineer of the train, was John Hand of Toledo. He told Trainmaster A. H. Hancock of Elvira, when the flyer stopped there after the crash that neither he nor the fireman on the train saw the approaching bus. He said the train was traveling at the rate of about 45 miles an hour.

There is an incline at that point on the train would have been doing in excess of 60 miles per hour. Hand said. The train was en route to Toledo and Chicago.

WINDOWS COVERED
Sheldon-rd running in a north and south direction crosses the tracks just east of the main highway from Cleveland to Berea. Eyewitnesses of the crash reported that just prior to the accident they had noticed that the windows of the bus were almost entirely covered with frost.

A scant minute later the noise of the crash and the screaming of train brakes brought numerous motorists traveling the main road to the scene.

Debris of the demolished bus and mangled bodies of the children were scattered along the tracks for a distance of more than 500 yards. In the cases of the dead, the bodies were mangled almost beyond recognition.

The court of appeals upheld the conviction but the supreme court granted a stay until Dec. 20, to permit the case to be brought before that body. The court failed to act upon it by that time, and a further stay until Jan. 31, was granted. The decision which was rendered yesterday, extended the execution date for four more weeks.

This latest stay expires three days after the United States supreme court reconvenes. Unless it is able to dispose of the motion for a review before that time, it is possible that that body may grant a further stay.

J. H. ADAMS IS C. C. SPEAKER

Manager of Sturm-Dillard Plant Delivers Fine Constructive Talk.

James H. Adams, of the Sturm & Dillard Gravel Washing Co., addressed the Chamber of Commerce at their regular meeting Tuesday night and told about this new industry in Circleville.

Mr. Adams, being well acquainted with all the details in the operation of the gravel washing plant, vividly explained operations that are necessary to wash the gravel and have it ready to be hauled away in truck or railroad cars. With their equipment and two stone crushers this concern turns out seven kinds of washed gravel and sand and since the plant first started operations their business has grown extensively.

"With the opening up of this large deposit of gravel, and the installation of this community now have a source of getting first grade material for building and road work," he stated. During the past year over 30,000 tons of gravel have been hauled on Pickaway-co roads. "Washed gravel," he said, "is much better for road material than bank run and in the long run is much cheaper."

"During the past two years this firm has paid $175,000 for labor alone," Mr. Adams stated, "and this in addition to the supplies that are purchased in Circleville helps this community." Since operations were started from 40 to 60 people have been employed daily at their plant in addition to over 20 truck drivers who haul gravel from the plant.

"From tests made the deposit of gravel at their location will last at least 15 years and the operation of the plant will be continued just as long as they find it profitable," he said.

REPORT BUS DROVE INTO FAST TRAIN

Victims Are Horribly Mangled Making Identification Almost Impossible.

BEREA, O., Jan. 22 — Eleven school children and a bus driver were killed here today when the Brookpark school bus was rammed and demolished by a fast New York Central mail and passenger train.

Nine of the children and the driver were killed instantly. The bus, driven by John Taylor of Brookpark village, according to observers of the crash, approached the tracks from the south on Sheldon-rd. Frost gathered on the windows of the bus apparently preventing Taylor from seeing the approaching flyer and the bus was hit while directly in the path of the train.

Between 15 and 20 children were riding in the bus on their way to Brookpark school.

The engineer of the train, was John Hand of Toledo. He told Trainmaster A. H. Hancock of Elyria, when the flyer stopped there after the crash that neither he nor the fireman on the train saw the approaching bus. He said the train was traveling at the rate of about 45 miles an hour.

There is an incline at that point or the train would have been doing in excess of 60 miles per hour. Hand said. The train was enroute to Toledo and Chicago.

of the undertaking parlor. His nephew and niece, Jake Walter, 12 and his sister, Juanita, 9, were among those removed to the funeral establishment.

According to observers of the tragedy, both the driver and the engineer of the train had an unobstructed view while approaching the crossing. The scene of the crash is a rural, unguarded crossing just east of the city limits of Berea.

WINDOWS COVERED
Sheldon-rd running in a north and south direction crosses the tracks just east of the main highway from Cleveland to Berea. Eyewitnesses of the crash reported that just prior to the accident they had noticed that the windows of the bus were almost entirely covered with frost.

A scant minute later the noise of the crash and the screaming of train brakes brought numerous motorists traveling the main road to the scene.

Debris of the demolished bus and mangled bodies of the children were scattered along the tracks for a distance of more than 500 yards. In the cases of the dead, the bodies were mangled almost beyond recognition.

The following identifications were established shortly before noon today of the victims of the school bus crash here in which nine children and a bus driver were killed when the bus was demolished by a fast New York Central train:

PICKAWAY-TWP HAS ROBBERY

Thief Steals Picture Machine Valued At $375 From School House.

Authorities are making every effort to discover the thief of a moving picture machine stolen from the Pickaway-twp school building Monday night. The machine is valued at $375. Nothing else was stolen from the building.

When the theft was reported, authorities at the school were told that there have been 50 machines stolen recently in the state of Ohio, and none has ever been found.

The loss at the Pickaway-twp school was discovered Tuesday when the janitor was sent for the machine.

It was stolen sometime after 10:30 p. m. Monday because there were people there up to that time.

The thief who appeared to be well acquainted with the building, gained entrance through a door in the new building. A glass in a door there had been broken and the new glass had not yet arrived. The opening had been covered over by three thicknesses of heavy cardboard. This had been broken through, and the door opened from the inside.

Prints in the snow showed where the thief had tried other doors and windows around the building before finding a door he could open.

Tigers Take Sensational Game at Granville

JAGGY DAVIS LEADS RED AND BLACK BATTLERS TO AMAZING 26-23 VICTORY

Led by acting captain Jaggy Davis, who pulled sensational shot after sensational shot, the Circleville high school Tigers lived up to their name for the second time in a week after one of the greatest court battles of the year at Granville in a Central Buckeye league game Tuesday. The score was 26-23 and although Circleville led at the end of each period, the score never varied more than four points and that advantage was held by the Granville lads in the third period when things were looking pretty dark for the Guthrie-men.

But that inimitable fighting spirit that won a victory over Y Day school last Friday, and gave Chillicothe's team a battle, came into evidence late in the third session and was to be seen all through the last session when the "Battling Tigers" came through to victory.

And a sweet victory it was.

FAST PASSERS
Granville presented one of the fastest passing teams the Circleville team has faced this year, and when they started moving the ball around in the first period, no one had any other idea except that they would score plenty of points, except those five boys who were wearing Circleville colors.

They blocked the Granville offense at every turn. They took the ball from them. They dribbled around them. And best of all they outgamed them.

Nickerson scored the first Circleville point after two minutes of fast passing on a foul shot when he was hacked by Foster. Granville, however, had taken a lead of four points on two foul shots by Young, after being fouled by Clark, and a field goal by Ashbrook. A long heave by Jaggy Davis and a sucker shot by Clark gave the locals a lead of 5 to 4 as the first period ended.

The second period was exceedingly fast. Young scored a goal for Granville. Nickerson made another foul for Circleville after he had missed a free throw. Davis scored a pretty bucket and followed it with another. Nickerson finished the Tigers' scoring with a free throw while Ashbrook and Foster each scored a bucket for Granville.

AHEAD AT HALF

The half ended 11-10 in favor of the Tigers.

Then came the period that made things look bad for a while. Ashbrook, district forward last year, scored a foul and followed it with a bucket after he eluded his guard. Cox came through with a goal to give Granville a neat lead. Nickerson scored a field goal from the foul line. Russell counted a foul and Jaggy Davis came through with another neat goal to put the Tigers back into the game. Nickerson's second field goal of the period gave the Tigers an 18-16 edge at the three-quarter pole.

The final quarter was sensational in every sense of the word and with Jaggy Davis coming through in a pinch the Tigers won the game. Ashbrook again made things look bad when he scored a goal and a free throw. Clark scored a foul. Davis scored a push shot from the corner. Foster and Young connected in rapid succession for Granville. Nickerson counted a foul shot and Davis also scored a charity toss. With only a minute to play the score was tied at 23-23. Then came a climax.

TEAM COMES THROUGH

Jaggy Davis took a pass from Clark, cut down the side of the court and although covered by two men, pushed the ball through them with one hand, along the bank-board and into the net. That was enough to win, but when Young pushed Davis when they were lining up for a tip off, the Tiger leader again made a free throw. As the teams were getting ready for the center tip the horn sounded, ending the game.

Circleville had won its first game in the new Central Buckeye league and now stands at the .500 mark with one defeat and a victory.

Friday night they meet Granview in the local gym in another league game.

Ruff, Denison University football coach, refereed the game in fine style.

The Tigers committed only three personal fouls during the contest.

CIRCLEVILLE GIRLS RALLY TO DEFEAT GRANVILLE, 24-23

Coming through with a great rally after they had trailed from the end of the first half until the middle of the final period, the Circleville high school girls won their second start of the season at Granville Tuesday evening. The score of the game was 24-23.

This contest was one of the fastest and most interesting girls games that has been seen for a long time and the small crowd of loyal Circleville followers who made the trip to the college town went wild when the final horn had blown.

The local girls started out like world-beaters and in the first period piled up a lead of 11-4. Miss Eldridge led the scoring in this session when she got loose for four goals. In the second quarter each team scored four points with Fitzpatrick getting all Circleville's points and Roberts out in front for Granville.

But the third session was decidedly different.

GRANVILLE HOT

Granville got hot and with both their forwards and center taking part in the scoring, gradually cut the Circleville lead until the score was a tie at 16-all then went ahead as the period ended by an 18-16 count.

The start of fourth quarter saw both teams fighting hotly for possession of the ball. The lead alternated in the final period and with scarcely more than a minute to play, Circleville was behind by two points. Fitzpatrick, who seemed to be off on her foul shots during a large part of the evening, connected perfectly on a free throw and the locals were behind by but one counter. Then Fitzpatrick broke loose from her guard and dribbled into the net for the deciding goal just as the game ended and the score was 24-23.

The Circleville crowd broke into bedlam.

All the girls played—excellent ball and despite the fact that they were playing on a three division floor instead of a three they never seemed to be at much of a disadvantage.

Fitzpatrick scored five buckets and four free throws and Eldridge scored five shots from action. Shepard, Granville's captain, was high for her team with four goals and three free throws.

The girls' team will play their first home game of the season Friday against Grandview high.

FRANCE MAKES HER DEMANDS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
LONDON, Jan. 22—The importance of the French position at the five power naval disarmament conference was speedily demonstrated today, the first "working day" of the parley.

Although it was announced that the day would be given over to an exchange of "purely personal" views of the chief delegates, as a preliminary to tomorrow's plenary session, it soon became apparent that the French claims, as put forward by chief French delegate, Premier Tardieu, had caused something more than a small flurry throughout the conference circles.

The Circleville crowd broke into bedlam.

All the girls played excellent ball and despite the fact that they were playing on a two division floor instead of a three they never seemed to be at much of a disadvantage.

Fitzpatrick scored five buckets and four free throws and Eldridge scored five shots from action. Shepard, Granville's captain, was high for her team with four goals and three free throws. The girls' team will play their first home game of the season Friday against Grandview high.

SPRAY AND DUST
CAN'T DO IT ALL

Citrus Methods Also Are Valuable In Fighting
Pests and Diseases.

Spraying and dusting are essential in the control of pests and diseases in the garden, but won't do the entire job so well or so cheaply as if they were reinforced with good culture practices. This is pointed out in "Control of Garden Insects and Diseases," the most recent bulletin issued by the Agriculture Extension Service of the Ohio State university.

Late fall plowing brings to the surface of the ground, where they will be destroyed, insect pupae which winter in the soil. Fall and early spring plowing prevents much cutworm injury, by removing from the soil food which is necessary for the cutworms before the garden is planted.

Crop rotation helps materially. It tends to prevent an accumulation of soil-borne disease organisms such as potato scab, yellows and club root of cabbage, and tomato wilt. It is the most effective method of preventing injury by white grubs, and forces insects to migrate to other areas.

Destruction of crop remnants, such as unmarketable onions and the stalks of cabbages, as well as weeds and rubbish from along the edges of the garden, greatly lessens damage from insects and disease organisms which winter in such shelter. Flea beetles are dependent upon weeds for their larval development before they turn to the garden crops. Clean cultivation and garden sanitation are the cheapest known insecticides, say the specialists who wrote the bulletin, and may make unnecessary the application of some of the sprays.

BEEKEEPERS TO HAVE MEETING

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22.—One day of the three chosen for the annual meeting of the Ohio State Beekeepers' Association, Feb. 5, 7 and 8, will this year be devoted to discussing the value of bees in pollinating fruit trees. The annual meeting will be held at the Ohio State university here in connection with the eighteenth annual Farmers' Week sponsored by the University. Farmers' Week programs open on Monday, February 3. The beekeepers have selected the last three days of the week for their own sessions.

Investigations of the work done by bees in pollinating fruit trees, was started in Ohio last spring by Virgil N. Argo, extension specialist in beekeeping for the University. Similar work has been carried on in other states. Argo will report the results of some investigations carried on in Ohio this year.

Other speakers on the same general topic will be Frank C. Pellet, associate editor of the American Bee Journal, and Dr. E. F. Phillips, professor of apiculture at Cornell university, Ithaca, New York. Other topics in apiculture will be handled by other speakers both from Ohio and from other states.

It is easier to miss opportunities than to make them; but most worthwhile things result from those that are forced from circumstances.

BLIZZARDS HIT
CENTRAL U. S.

Minnesota, Dakotas and Montana Have Temperature of 20 To 40 Below.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Blizzards and below zero temperatures were common throughout the central states today as winter sent its second severe wave of the past week out of the Canadian north-west.

The frigid wave sent temperatures tumbling from the Rocky Mountains on the West to the Atlantic seaboard in the east.

The Denver area in Colorado reported temperatures ranging from 45 degrees below zero to 52 degrees below. Parts of Wyoming suffered temperatures which fell as low as 35 degrees below zero.

Heavy snows in the mountain states repeated the traffic tieups of Friday's storm. A blizzard which crippled Oklahoma succeeded in stalling a St. Louis-San Francisco train near Mustang, Okla. Seventy-five passengers including Governor Halloway of Oklahoma are held prisoners in the train.

The northern states of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana are once more suffering in temperatures ranging from 22 below to 40 below.

In Chicago the mercury descended one degree an hour during the night, hovering at the 6 below zero mark at dawn. In the Chicago area Milwaukee, with a temperature of ten degrees below zero, was the coldest spot.

MISS MABEL YOUNG

General Manager of Columbus Railway Puts Proposal Before Council.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22.—Possibility of an 8-cent cash street car fare, with five tickets for 35 cents, loomed here today following a proposition which was placed before the city council last night by Ben W. Marr, president and general manager of the Columbus Railway Power and Light Company.

The present fare is six cents cash or five tickets for 25 cents. The street car company's proposal came as the result of more than a year's controversy, which has been staged between the council and officials of the company.

If the advanced fare is approved and accepted, the company will spend $1,000,000 for the improvement of cars and tracks and the purchase of 100 new cars, President Marr told members of the utilities committee of the council.

FORMER RESIDENT
HERE IS SUMMONED

William Marcellus, aged 54, colored, a former resident of Circleville, died in Columbus University hospital Sunday night. He is survived by one sister of Lancaster, and a brother of Nashville, Tenn.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at Lancaster with burial in Elmwood-ave cemetery there.

Konjola, the new and different medicine, triumphs when all else failed. This had been proved in countless cases like that, for instance, of Mrs. Ida May Reed, 438 Park avenue, Loveland, near Cincinnati, who said:

"All my life I suffered from stomach trouble, and for many years from liver and kidney ills," she said. "I tried over 50 many advertised medicines but the only one that reached the spot was Konjola. It would take columns to describe the miseries I endured, but Konjola surely saved the day. I had headaches and dizzy spells. Every night I had to be up frequently. At times I was in bed for weeks. My weight went to 68 pounds. No wonder I lost hope and courage. But Konjola, in just five weeks, solved all my health problems. SQUARE DEAL IN DRIVING

As a slogan for a Motor Court Week, an automobile editor suggests this: "Give the other guy a break."

Someone else suggests spelling it "brake," which isn't so bad, either.

Suppose every driver, when he got into any kind of motor mix-up, instead of tooting his horn at the other fellow, or yelling at him, or ramming his way through at the risk of smashing fenders and splashing pedestrians, would just shift his foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal and ease up the situation a little.

Nine-tenths of the motor accidents are said to occur because somebody didn't give somebody else a square deal. Maybe the victim is a motorist, maybe he is a pedestrian. In either case, courtesy is usually the key to safety. This is especially true in the winter.

KNOWLEDGE

Now it can be told, though perhaps it shouldn't.

Clara A. Briggs, the famous comic cartoonist, who has just been promoted to draw funny pictures for the angels, was once a college student in Lincoln, Neb., studying mathematics under an instructor named Lieut. John J. Pershing. Pershing had high mathematical standards, and Briggs, as is the way with young fellows who can draw, was very hazy in that branch of learning. One day, after he had struggled long and vainly to demonstrate a theorem in geometry at the blackboard, the instructor said: "Briggs, sit down. You don't know anything."

"Right then and there," Briggs declared afterwards, "I decided to become a newspaper man."

Even so, it's hardly fair to the profession. Other professions know a great deal of one thing, and often seem to stop there. A newspaper man has to know a little of everything.

EXPENSIVE POLITENESS

The costliness of civility has been estimated by the manager of an office building in—of all places—Chicago. By removing their hats in the elevator when ladies are present, courteous gentlemen crowd out one passenger. Holding the hat against the chest takes up his space. But the benighted souls upon whom civility plays this scurvy trick must get to their offices, so the elevator makes extra trips. The extra trips consume $25,000 in electricity in the course of a year.

The estimator hastens to add that the management of the building is glad to bear this expense in the interest of civility.

This raises a mathematical question on the order of the Achilles-and-the-tortoise brain-teaser. If civility crowds some one out on every trip, isn't there a would-be passenger who never gets his chance at the elevator?

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAP. XXVI.
WHAT could she do? She was frantic, wild to throw herself in Dick's arms. She could have done it before every one. When would he come? She'd call to him when she saw him there getting off his horse. She'd watch—

Ned—what would she say to him? She couldn't live with this shadow over him. It was as if he had committed a crime. It was a crime, a crime against two hearts. Caught. Her hands tied. She'd have to stand by her marriage.

Strong women accept what comes with marriage. They keep to their contract—unless their reason for breaking it is just.

Ned had been a good husband since she had married him. To mention this to him would not be fair. It had happened before their marriage.

To speak of it to Dick would be disloyalty to the man of her choice. It was her fault. She had chosen the wrong man.

If it—in weakness she were to throw herself on Dick's breast and sob out her grief! She couldn't trust herself to do that. It would be dangerous. She belonged to Ned. No one had made her marry him. She'd done it all by herself. No one had influenced her. She had refused other men. Why had she accepted Ned?

What right had she to break up his friendship with Dick? If she told Dick he might do something awful. She must protect him against this sorrow which she was suffering.

She must protect the man she had married—she must not show to Dick or the world that she had married a weakling. She must abide by her bargain.

She'd made her bed. She must lie in it.

Oh—Dick—my beloved Dick—Hearts do break. Mine has a deep rent in it—Dick—yours must not.

Very early in life had Enid found it stern.

She sat up, brushed her hair back and looked at the clock. She must dress.

Dinner. She did not dare look into Dick's face. She couldn't. She could hardly swallow. The twilight on Pauline's porch . . . Dick right there where she could touch him. Oh, to put her arms around his neck—Dick!

"Here's where we vindicate ourselves," declared Pauline, pulling the bridge table out under the light. "Enid, we simply cannot let Dick and Genevieve beat us again tonight."

But Dick and Genevieve won again.

"You'll simply have to trust me until tomorrow morning, Dick. I'm too sleepy even to look for my purse tonight. Good night, children. I'll run along!"

Floating from Dick's mouth would understand; he would think it was to evade the temptation of the night.

Dick arose when she left the room, but made no effort to walk to her cabin with her.

"That was quite a ride we took today," said Dick. "Come on, Gene, you must be tired, too. I'll walk over to your cabin with you."

There's no sign of life over her again. Why, she had never found love. She had never loved before. He couldn't go. She'd beg him to stay.

Was he really saying good-bye there to Pauline at the table? He was shaking hands now with Ivor. Oh—Dick—let me see you—please—don't go this way—right here before everybody—think of last night—my darling—wait—just for a little while—

But he said good-bye while they were at the table. He extended his hand across the table to Enid. She tried to smile into his face—they were all looking. "Good-bye, Dick. Try to come down soon again."

"Good-bye—good-bye, Enid." He was off. She saw the easy swing of his stride, his big shoulders. He was pushing that lock of hair out of his eyes as he walked by Dave. She had smoothed that lock back last night as she had bent over him and kissed him—with his head on her arm and his eyes searching hers.

To think that he would go with only a formal good-bye! But that was his way—strong, determined, no compromise. He'd held to it for years, he told her. All these long years he had loved her—suffering loved her. Was that what had marked the lines of patience in his face? And she had admitted to him that she had married the wrong man. It was he that she should have married, not Ned. She had almost told Dick of Ned's betrayal, but she had held back.

Ned! To breathe his name terrified her—she had let Ned down. He didn't deserve it. How could she look into his face again? How could she be his wife? Hadn't Dick called her his wife last night? Where was she? How could she cope with this situation in which she found herself?

Now, she could never accuse Ned. She herself was not without sin.

The long interminable weeks and the rides tired her. Genevieve was gone now. Just she and Dave and Pauline were together.

"There's a night letter for you, Enid," Dave said in the morning. Immediately she thought it might be from Dick. She opened it quickly.

Obliged to go east via Oklahoma, may be held up a week there. Too hot for you there, and could not be with you on account of looking over properties. Suggest you go east the northern route—cooler. Meet me in Chicago on the fifteenth. Disappointed not to get back to Serana. Explain to Dave and Pauline. Miss you terribly. All love, Ned."

San Francisco. Dick. Her heart jumped. She could stay there several days—see him every day—drive with him—dine with him—feel his arms around her—Dick kissing her—

"We can take two days for it and stop over at Gonzales—you always liked that, Enid," Dave had said.

Two days! One day less in San Francisco. They wouldn't reach there until Thursday night, and she had her reservations east for Friday.

What could she say—when they were trying to be so kind to her? Then came the long, long ride north. A sleepless night at Gonzales. San Francisco—pulling up at the St. Francis at midnight, dead tired, heart aching for Dick.

Breakfast—with Genevieve as fresh and strong as a young Diana, bubbling over with fun and energy. Enid was silent. Her heart was breaking. Dick hadn't said he was leaving. But he had said it must not and would not ever happen again.

Close they stood, gazing at its brilliance. Then Enid quickly drew closer to Dick. For as she looked again, its bright rays piercing through the screen of the door reflected a perfect cross of light. Dear God!

Enid was silent. Her heart was breaking. Dick hadn't said he was leaving. But he had said it must not and would not ever happen again.

Enid was silent. Her heart was breaking. Dick hadn't said he was leaving. But he had said it must not and would not ever happen again.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Is overacting ever justified? "Talkies" have brought to the studios a controversy which has always split stage folks into two factions, although leaving the screen untouched until the coming of dialogue films.

Willard Mack, stage dramatist, now with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, says he wants his players to over-act in rehearsals.

"I want them to go the limit," he declared, "then I'll know what parts to tone down before we go before the recording apparatus." Cecil B. DeMille, whose "Dynamite," now playing at the Cliftona theatre, is his first "talkie" although his fifty-fifth picture, takes violent exception.

"Overacting is never justified," he stated. "In rehearsals I never permit my players to reach a peak of emotion. I indicate what that peak should be when we start to record—but I never permit them to exceed it."

"The inspiration of actual recording will get the best work out of any actor. It is silly to waste creative energy on a bare rehearsal stage. A rehearsal is nothing but a pencilled drawing—and should contain no more details than any preliminary sketch."

Fred Niblo and William De Mille, old stage directors, take a middle course, affirming that all questions of tempo in emotion should be worked out as problems of individual actors. "Some players need to be carried to the heights in rehearsals, or they would never reach it afterward," is Niblo's dictum.

All of which is just another link in the variegated chain of "talkie" argument which is convulsing Hollywood.

A Foolish Fear!

Dr. Copeland's Health Message Today

Nose-Bleed a Common Symptom, Usually Due to Local Causes, and Should Not Cause Worry, Says Authority, Suggesting Treatment.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY persons worry over nosebleeds. They seem to think it means high blood pressure, "congestion of the brain," weakened blood vessels, cancer and goodness knows what other terrible things.

What lots of things there are to worry over! There seems born in the soul of each of us the fear of death. We are taught that the blood is the very life of the body. If this precious fluid begins to run away, if nothing else happens, certainly there oozes out with it the bravery we ordinarily possess.

This is a foolish fear and unworthy of us. Besides, fear sets the heart beating crazily and this in turn increases the bleeding. You see the heart is influenced by our emotions. The sight of blood is apt to depress the heart action, or else the fear stimulates and excites it.

There are many forms of bleeding. Nose-bleeds is the commonest. It may result from injury, from local disease, or from some systemic disturbance.

Certain diseases of the kidneys, liver, lungs and heart produce congestion and may cause nosebleeds. Some acute fevers have bleeding from the nose as one of the symptoms. Measles, influenza, pneumonia, diphtheria, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and especially typhoid fever are such diseases. Anemia, and other conditions where the blood quality is reduced may have nosebleeds as one of the complications.

A blow on the nose, and catarrh, when there is ulceration within the nose, are common causes of nosebleeds. Almost everybody has more or less catarrh. This is due in many cases to carelessness of the average individual regarding the common cold and its neglect.

Repeated colds are followed by chronic inflammation of the tissues of the nose. Constant blowing and fuffing with the nose result in broken tissues inside that organ. There is a little raw spot. Mucus collects on this spot, hardens and forms an annoying crust. The crust comes off before the ulcer is healed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Darst, widow of Ira B. Darst, died Saturday morning, Jan. 17, at her home north of Darbyville. She was 78 years of age.

She is survived by a son, Henry, and a daughter, Mary Darst. The funeral was held Tuesday.

An accident which befell Osie Pritchard, Saltcreek-twp, might have proved fatal. His Ford failed to get gasoline into the carburetor and he drained the tank in order to get the dirt out. He then lighted a match to see if it was all out when the gasoline exploded burning his face into a blister.

Fire, which started about 2 o'clock Saturday completely destroyed the mill of the New Holland and Milling co., entailing a loss of between $4,000 and $5,000. The building was the property of A. H. Nathaniel P. Neff, a veteran of the Civil war, died Wednesday, Jan. 13, at his home near Pherson from a stroke of paralysis, which he sustained the preceding Sunday. He was born in 1835 in Virginia and came to this county in 1839. may be used on the neck or over the nose. Sometimes putting the feet in hot water will force the blood away from the head and thus assist in controlling the bleeding. Pinching the nose between the thumb and finger will sometimes put enough pressure on the bleeding point to control the hemorrhage.

Tannic acid dissolved in water may be applied on cotton. The patient clears the nose by blowing out the clots of blood and a cotton tampon is then pushed into the nasal passage. Peroxide of hydrogen is also a satisfactory agent for controlling bleeding, and one of the best things is adrenalin chloride. This is a solution which is found in many houses and is a marked astringent.

Do not be frightened. Keep cool, no not worry, and doubtless everything will be all right after waiting a short time.

Still More Millions

Treat Colds Direct

Round-About Method of "Dosi" Gives Way To Modern Vaporizing Salve

More and more people each year are giving up the slow, indirect way of treating colds by "dosing" with internal medicines, and are adopting the modern direct treatment—Vicks VapoRub.

Vicks goes direct to the affected parts and checks the cold in two ways—its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages; at the same time it acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness.

Vicks is especially appreciated by mothers because it is just rubbed on, and therefore, cannot upset children's delicate stomachs as "dosing" is so apt to do. Today the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

To keep pace with the ever-growing demand, the famous slogan, "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. This figure too has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" for every family in the United States.

Was he really saying good-bye there to Pauline at the table? He was shaking hands now with Ivor. Oh—Dick—let me see you—please—don't go this way—right here before everybody—think of last night—my darling—wait—just for a little while—

But he said good-bye while they were at the table. He extended his hand across the table to Enid. She tried to smile into his face—they were all looking. "Good-bye, Dick. Try to come down soon again."

"Good-bye—good-bye, Enid." He was off. She saw the easy swing of his stride, his big shoulders. He was pushing that lock of hair out of his eyes as he walked by Dave. She had smoothed that lock back last night as she had bent over him and kissed him—with his head on her arm and his eyes searching hers.

To think that he would go with only a formal good-bye! But that was his way—strong, determined, no compromise. He'd held to it for years, he told her. All these long years he had loved her—suffering loved her. Was that what had marked the lines of patience in his face? And she had admitted to him that she had married the wrong man. It was he that she should have married, not Ned. She had almost told Dick of Ned's betrayal, but she had held back—

Ned! To breathe his name terrified her—she had let Ned down. He didn't deserve it. How could she look into his face again? How could she be his wife last night? Where was she? How could she cope with this situation in which she found herself?

Now she could never accuse Ned. She herself was not without sin!

The long interminable weeks and the rides tired her. Genevieve was gone now. Just she and Dave and Pauline were together.

There's a night letter for you, Enid! It's said in the morning. Immediately she thought it might be from Dick. She opened it quickly.

"Obliged to go east via Oklahoma; may be held up a week there. Too hot for you there, and could not be with you on account of looking over properties. Suggest you go east the northern route—cooler. Meet me in Chicago on the fifteenth. Disappointed not to get back to Serana. Explain to Dave and Pauline. Miss you terribly. All love, Ned."

San Francisco. Dick. Her heart jumped. She could stay there several days . . . see him every day . . . drive with him . . . dine with him . . . feel his arms around her . . . Dick kissing her . . .

"We can take two days for it and stop over at Gonzales—you always liked that, Enid," Dave had said.

Two days! One day less in San Francisco. They wouldn't reach there until Thursday night, and she had her reservations east for Friday.

What could she say—when they were trying to be so kind to her? Then came the long, long ride north. A sleepless night at Gonzales. San Francisco—pulling at the St. Francis at midnight, dead tired, heart aching for Dick.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Is overacting ever justified? "Talkies" have brought to the studios a controversy which has always split stage folks into two factions, although leaving the screen untouched until the coming of dialogue films.

Willard Mack, stage dramatist, now with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, says he wants his players to overact in rehearsals.

"I want them to go the limit," he declared, "then I'll know what parts to tone down before we go before the recording apparatus."

Cecil B. DeMille, whose "Dynamite," now playing at the Cliftona theatre, is his first "talkie" although his fifty-fifth picture, takes violent exception.

"Overacting is never justified," he stated. "In rehearsals I never permit my players to reach a peak of emotion. I indicate what that peak should be when we start to record—but I never permit them to exceed it."

"The inspiration of actual recording will get the best work out of any actor. It is silly to waste creative energy on a bare rehearsal stage. A rehearsal is nothing but a pencilled drawing—and should contain no more details than any preliminary sketch."

Fred Niblo and William De Mille, old stage directors, take a middle course, affirming that all questions of tempo in emotion should be worked out as problems of individual actors. "Some players need to be carried to the heights in rehearsals, or they would never reach it afterward," is Niblo's dictum.

All of which is just another link in the variegated chain of "talkie" argument which is convulsing Hollywood.

A Foolish Fear!

Dr. Copeland's Health Message Today

Nose-Bleed a Common Symptom, Usually Due to Local Causes, and Should Not Cause Worry, Says Authority, Suggesting Treatment.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY persons worry over nosebleeds. They seem to think it means high blood pressure, "congestion of the brain," weakened blood vessels, cancer and goodness knows what other terrible things.

DR. COPELAND.

What lots of things there are to worry over! There seems born in the soul of each of us the fear of death. We are taught that the blood is the very life of the body. If this precious fluid begins to run away, if nothing else happens, certainly there oozes out with it the bravery we ordinarily possess.

This is a foolish fear and unworthy of us. Besides, fear sets the heart beating strongly and this in turn increases the bleeding. You see the heart is influenced by our emotions. The sight of blood is apt to depress the heart action, or else the fear stimulates and excites it.

There are many forms of bleeding. Nosebleed is the commonest. It may result from injury, from local disease, or from some systemic disturbance.

Certain diseases of the kidneys, liver, lungs and heart produce congestion and may cause nosebleeds. Some acute fevers have bleeding from the nose as one of the symptoms. Measles, influenza, pneumonia, diphtheria, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and especially typhoid fever are such diseases. Anemia, and other conditions where the blood quality is reduced may have nosebleeds as one of the complications.

A blow on the nose, and catarrh, when there is ulceration within the nose, are common causes of nosebleeds. Almost everybody has more or less catarrh. This is due in many cases to carelessness of the average individual regarding the common cold and its neglect.

Repeated colds are followed by chronic inflammation of the tissues of the nose. Constant blowing and fussing with the nose result in broken tissues inside that oozage.

There is a little raw spot. Mucus collects on this spot, hardens and forms an annoying crust. The crust comes off before the ulcer is healed.

may be used on the neck or over the nose.

Sometimes putting the feet in hot water will force the blood away from the head and thus assist in controlling the bleeding. Pinching the nose between the thumb and finger will sometimes put enough pressure on the bleeding point to control the hemorrhage.

Tannic acid dissolved in water may be applied on cotton. The patient, clears the nose by blowing out the clots of blood and a cotton tampon is then pushed into the nasal passage. Peroxide of hydrogen is also a satisfactory agent for controlling bleeding, and one of the best things is adrenalin chloride. This is a solution which is found in many houses and is a marked astringent.

Do not be frightened. Keep cool, no not worry, and doubtless everything will be all right after waiting a short time.

D.A.R. Meets At Mrs. Gerhardt's Charming Home

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt of E. Mound-st. dispensed hospitality Tuesday afternoon to the Pickaway Plains Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The Regent, Mrs. Laura King, presided at the business meeting after which an interesting program followed.

Mrs. Lee Luellen of Williamsport read a paper on "The Defense of Youth" and took as her main topic "The Communist Nuclei." In this treatment of the subject was emphasized the fact that communists are never idle among the youth of the country. This referred to even the school children, not only in the surging Russia but also in free America. A number of startling facts testify that the banner of Leninism is being thrust into the hands of the children of America.

The greatest success in holding meetings and in penetrating concentrated industrial centers, is reported from the section of the country populated by the miners and textile workers in all localities such as New York, Massachusetts and Michigan. The paper said that "Every factory a citadel of revolution" is the cry. The writing concluded by asking what the patriotic societies of the great republic were doing to combat this propaganda.

Miss Alice Ada May gave an interesting sketch of the life of Dolly Madison. Miss May has had the rare opportunity of visiting the old Jackson homestead and reading some very old letters written by Dolly Madison and her sister, Mary Payne Jackson, wife of John Jackson, ancestor of Andrew Jackson.

Current events at the meeting, always an interesting feature of the active program, were offered by Mrs. Emmitt Crist.

Mrs. Gerhardt was joined as hostesses at the meeting by Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mrs. H. O. Pyle, Mrs. Agnes Riebel and Misses Anna and Estella Grimes. Mrs. Riebel, a member of the Pickaway Plains Chapter is from Columbus and is the sister of Mrs. Gerhardt. Refreshments were served by these hostesses.

Four new members, Mrs. Minnie Bales, Mrs. Mary Mack, Mrs. Edna Sweeney and Mrs. Mary Johnson were admitted to the organization. Five additional alternate delegates to the D. A. R. in Oxford are Mrs. Lee Luellen, Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Gilbert Teegardin, Mrs. Noah Weaver and Mrs. Lee Shaner.

BRIDEGROOM IS FROM KINGSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Streevey of Chillicothe, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Jeannette Elizabeth, to Mr. Merrill Charles Krathefer, which took place Monday, August 19, 1929, at Bowling Green, Ohio.

The ceremony which united this popular young couple was solemnized in the Presbyterian parsonage at Bowling Green, Rev. Paul J. Gilbert, officiating.

The bride has been the efficient bookkeeper for the Joseph Enderle grocery for the past three and one half years in Chillicothe.

Mr. Krathefer is the son of Mrs. Charles Krathefer of Kingston.

The plans of Mr. and Mrs. Krathefer are indefinite for the present.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS THURSDAY

Every member of the Royal Daughters of America is asked to be present Thursday night at the regular meeting. At this time there will be the installation of the recently appointed officers. The meeting will open at 7.30 o'clock.

WINORR TO FURNISH MENU FOR DINNER

AT CONFERENCE IN COLUMBUS

Among those attending the Pentecostal conference of churches in Columbus, have been Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Howard, W. H. Plum, Mrs. Orpha Kirkwood and S. G. Grant.

FOR "PATSY" JONES OF CLARKSBURG

Mrs. Harry Harcourt of S. Mulberry-st, Chillicothe, was the hostess at a charming dinner-bridge on Monday evening, when Miss Patricia Jones, of Clarksburg, whose marriage to Mr. Howard Whittaker, will be an event of early spring, was the honored guest. At 6:30 a dinner of delightful courses was served at three tables, centered with roses, after which bridge was played.

At the conclusion of the game, trophies for scoring were awarded Mrs. F. R. Aldrich and Mrs. Warren Kampf. Lovely gifts were also presented to the honor guest, and the two other out-of-town guests, Mrs. Herman Hildner, (Mary Martha Hermsen) of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Burton Clark (Mary Harcourt) of Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Lauds Prohibition On Tenth Anniversary

GRANGE MEETS AT PICKAWAY

An excellent representation of the Log in Elm Grange attended the meeting Tuesday night of that organization in the Pickaway-two school house. There was short business. But the entertaining program occupied most of the evening. The program follows:

There was nothing stilted about the discussions, yet each showed careful preparation with the view point of the audience in mind. Mr. Pontious, the master of the grange, expressed some excellent ideas and practical plans for the grange in the coming year. Mrs. Reub and her "Don'ts" were interesting, and well worth bearing in mind.

Every discussion was fine and appreciated by the members of the grange. Shirley Dreisbach's ideas of the wife's work on the farm were humorous and at the same time carefully balanced. They were nothing new nor out

PREPARE FOR COLD WEATHER

Strikingly different conditions must be met by the human system when frigid winter comes. Diet must conform to new needs, resistance must be built to more rigorous weather.

It is well to consult an experienced doctor for his service. He'll tell you how to best combat the dangers of the elements. It's practical health-preservation.

D.A.R. Meets At Mrs. Gerhardt's Charming Home

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt of E. Mound-st dispensed hospitality Tuesday afternoon to the Pickaway Plains Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The Regent, Mrs. Laura King, presided at the business meeting after which an interesting program followed.

Mrs. Lee Luellen of Williamsport read a paper on "The Defense of Youth" and took as her main topic "The Communist Nuclei." In this treatment of the subject was emphasized the fact that communists are never idle among the youth of the country. This referred to even the school children, not only in the surging Russia but also in free America. A number of startling facts testify that the banner of Leninism is being thrust into the hands of the children of America.

The greatest success in holding meetings and in penetrating concentrated industrial centers, is reported from the section of the country populated by the miners and textile workers in all localities such as New York, Massachusetts and Michigan. The paper said that "Every factory a citadel of revolution" is the cry. The writing concluded by asking what the patriotic societies of the great republic were doing to combat this propaganda.

Miss Alice Ada May gave an interesting sketch of the life of Dolly Madison. Miss May has had the rare opportunity of visiting the old Jackson homestead and reading some very old letters written by Dolly Madison and her sister, Mary Payne Jackson, wife of John Jackson, ancestor of Andrew Jackson.

Current events at the meeting, always an interesting feature of the active program, were offered by Mrs. Emmitt Crist.

Mrs. Gerhardt was joined as hostesses at the meeting by Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mrs. H. O. Pyle, Mrs. Agnes Riebel and Misses Anna and Estella Grimes. Mrs. Riebel, a member of the Pickaway Plains Chapter is from Columbus and is the sister of Mrs. Gerhardt. Refreshments were served by these hostesses.

Four new members, Mrs. Minnie Bales, Mrs. Mary Mack, Mrs. Edna Sweeney and Mrs. Mary Johnson were admitted to the organization. Five additional alternate delegates to the D. A. R. in Oxford are Mrs. Lee Luellen, Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Gilbert Teegardin, Mrs. Noah Weaver and Mrs. Lee Shaner.

BRIDEGROOM IS FROM KINGSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Streevey of Chillicothe, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Jeanette Elizabeth, to Mr. Merrill Charles Krafthefer, which took place Monday, August 19, 1929, at Bowling Green, Ohio.

The ceremony which united this popular young couple was solemnized in the Presbyterian parsonage at Bowling Green, Rev. Paul J. Gilbert, officiating.

The bride has been the efficient bookkeeper for the Joseph Enderie grocery for the past three and one half years in Chillicothe.

Mr. Krafthefer is the son of Mrs. Charles Krafthefer of Kingston.

The plans of Mr. and Mrs. Krafthefer are indefinite for the present.

"EIGHTHS"

Eight is the sacred number for automobile engines this year. The manufacturers are rushing into eight-cylinder cars. "The jump of the last few years from four to six is nothing compared with the present jump from six to eight."

Of the 268 cars exhibited at the New York show, 147 were eight-cylinder models. Thus more than half the current models are eights.

The movement began to strengthen last year, when there was a 62 per cent increase in the sale of eight-cylinder cars above $1,000 and a decrease of 18 per cent in sixes above that price.

Thus we see how mechanical progress and luxury run along together. It used to be great to have four cylinders. Then there was a thrill in six. Now we keep on running up the number. There is a perceptible demand already for 12 and even 16 cylinders. With the increase comes greater power and smoothness of operation—though not of fuel economy.

Here is an interesting economic angle. The eights are counted on this year to give the desired impetus to the automobile industry. If it works that way, we may owe general prosperity to the general desire for greater ease and luxury in driving.

AIR SAFETY

Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, is in charge of investigations of aircraft accidents. Summing up condition in the first half of 1929, he says that more than half the crashes of that period were caused by over-confidence and over-zealousness on the part of pilots. Airplanes, like automobiles, are better and safer than heretofore, but human carelessness remains about the same.

Every airplane accident, particularly those involving a number of lives, receives much publicity. Its tragedy looms up larger in the reader's mind than the great amount of safe flying that goes on almost unnoticed all the time. As proof of his statement that flying is much safer these days, Mr. Young points out that in the first half of 1929 there was one fatal accident for every 432,430 miles flown. In the same period in 1928 there was a fatal accident for every 168,544 miles. The record for regular transport lines is still better, with only one death to a million miles of flight.

Aviation authorities are not resting content with these records. It is a safe prophecy that year by year there will be more miles flown with fewer accidents to transport planes. The outlook may not be so good for safety in general, because privately owned planes are likely to increase in numbers and will be harder to bring under safety regulations.

MUHLBERG

The Muhlberg girls moved one step forward to the Derby girls a very strong contender this year for honors among the girls squads in basketball.

The boys were defeated by Derby's squad of rough and tumble guards. Their only offensive threat was the full forward Matthews.

Examinations have just been finished and the second semester begins. This January was due to one week of time-out by threat of diphtheria.

The attendance for last week was the highest for several weeks. Room 1 having the lowest of 92 pupils. The attendance varied with the 8th and 9th grade of 98 per cent and the 10th and 11th grade 100 per cent. The other rooms were average.

Miss Clary's room gets a set of books as winner of first prize for P.T.A. membership campaign. Miss Beatty follows with a prize of two pictures framed for second prize.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

The hypothetical question of what one would do if cast on a strange island without the comforts of home has been one to intrigue the interest of fiction writers, film producers and the general public.

Consequently, "The Isle of Lost Ships," First National's screen version of Crittenden Marriot's novel, spruces the fancy and gives rise to speculation on the part of film players in the picture which comes to the Cliftona theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Virginia Valli, young, beautiful heroine on an island of ships and other wreckage floating around the Sargasso Sea, has some interesting thoughts on the subject of what would happen if she were really cast on an island with 52 men and but two other women, as the girl in the picture was.

The men in the case are a collection of the toughest waterfront characters that the director, Irvin Willat, could find between Vancouver and Panama. Noah Beery heads the forces of villainy. Jason Roberts is the hero, and Harry Cording, Robert Homans, Robert O'Connor, Sam Baker, Max Davidson, Davidson, Frank Chew and Jack Ackroyd have important roles.

AT THE GRAND

Dorothy Revier and Matt Moore are a real pair in "Beware of Blondes" which is at the Grand theatre Thursday. The story is a rollicking, farce comedy, daring, eventful and uproarious. Vitaphone Varieties and the sixth Chapter of Tarzan the Tiger are also scheduled on the evening's program.

THAT persistent advertising shows progressiveness and gives the public helpful service. THAT the public is entitled to this service, and every up-to-date business concern gives it. THAT business concerns who do not use newspaper advertising are not entitled to the patronage of the people.

THAT the spirit of a city is reflected through its newspapers. THAT if a city is alive and pushing ahead, newspapers show it; they are well filled with local advertising.

THAT it shows that local business men are alive and on the job and going after business. THAT when they go after business through newspaper advertising, THEY GET IT! THAT when business is good with local business concerns, the city as a whole is prosperous. When the Newspapers Are Prosperous They Give a Favorable Impression to the Outside World, Which Attracts New Industries and Investors to the Home City.

NO ONE TO GUIDE HIM?

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAPTER XXVII

THEY walked into the hotel and up to the desk to register. David was writing their names on the big pad. Enid and Pauline stood by him.

Then she saw Dick. He was coming across the lobby of the hotel with those easy, long strides. He was taking off his hat and pushing back that shaggy lock of hair from his forehead.

Dick walked straight to Enid and took her hand in his. Then he turned to David and Pauline. They went up in the elevator.

The boy opened the door of their suite, and there in the sitting-room were flowers—flowers everywhere. Pauline looked at the card: "Mr. Richard Grant."

"How lovely of you, Dick," she said. "Thank you so much, Dick," said Enid quietly, while her heart was crying out to tell him that her love was like the flowers he had sent and that she knew he was trying to tell her the same.

If she could only have a word with him alone! If she could only feel his arms around her and hear him say just once—only once that he loved her. She was so weary—if only she could put her head on his shoulder—just for a little while.

They sat there and talked for half an hour.

"Have a night-cap before you go," said Dave, offering Dick the bottle. "Yes, that would keep him a few moments longer. But when was she to talk to him—to be with him—alone? She was going at eleven the next morning. Dave and Pauline would go to the train with her. She couldn't leave without seeing him alone.

Quickly she thought. She acted. "Dick," she said, "will you do me a favor?"

"Why, certainly," replied Dick quickly.

"I want to get a black Chinese kimono for mother and some amber beads to take home for presents. Would you take me in your car tomorrow before I go to the train? You remember the place your mother took me to in Cincinnati?"

"Surely," he said. "What time shall I be around?"

"Would nine be too early?"

"I'll be down-stairs at nine prompt," he said.

"Good night—good night!"

At seven o'clock the next morning Enid telephoned for her kimono. Would nine o'clock ever come?

Eight forty-five. She wouldn't be so nervous if she waited down-stairs, so she went down and sat in a big chair in the lobby. Those fifteen minutes would be long. She looked at her watch. There was no use in buying a paper. She wouldn't know what she was reading. Then when she looked up, there he was standing in front of her.

"Enid."

"Dick."

"Let's get out of here."

He took her arm and led her through the door and out her in his car.

"We'll go right over to Oakland as soon as you buy your kimono."

around his mouth had vanished into one of grim determination. "Let's go up on deck," suggested Dick when they were on the ferry.

He did not speak until they were standing by the rail. Enid leaning against his shoulder, her hand in his.

He looked down at her. "Enid—my love!"

going to be my wife and obey the law. That is the way I love you."

Deliriously happy was Enid, but in a panic of fear and foreboding. "Dick, her husband, Dick, they might have children. Even now, was she going—"

"My darling," she raised those sea-blue eyes to Dick.

He bent his head close to her. "Yes, my girl."

"May I tell Ned?"

"No, my girl."

End Bunion Pain Forever

No Need to Suffer Another Day Those Agonizing Torturing Pains.

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning, and people who suffer from such enlargements would be wise to reduce them before they reach a more or less chronic stage.

Ask Hamilton & Ryan or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time, and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. By applying night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunched are reduced to normal.

Expert Care Needed in Glaucoma

This Painful Disease, One of the Disabilities Affecting the Eye, Should Never Be Neglected.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE is no wonder that thoughtful persons observe the remarkable perfection of Nature's methods. The human body, in its every part, is an instrument capable of adjusting itself to every condition it is likely to meet. Of all its parts, the eye must take first place in its remarkable adaptability to its purposes.

It must be expected that an organ so complicated will at times meet with trouble. One of the disabilities affecting the eye is known as "glaucoma."

The name given this disease is derived from a Latin word meaning greenish-blue or gray. It is appropriately applied to the disease because of the peculiar greenness of the pupil of the eye. This is quite characteristic of glaucoma. The victim of this complaint is likely to suffer great pain. The eyeball becomes very hard. The tension is sometimes so great it actually feels like a stone.

If you will close your eyelids and place the ends of your index fingers upon the closed lids you will get an idea of the normal tension of the eyeball. Pressing first with one finger and then the other, you will observe the elasticity of the eye, its softness. In glaucoma the feeling is entirely different. The tissues do not give at all under pressure of the finger tips.

The symptoms are due to interference in the drainage of the eye. The fluid which accumulates in the front part of the eye is constantly renewed. The excess is carried away through a canal which ultimately gets into the general circulation. If this drainage system is interfered with the fluid accumulates in the eyeball and, eventually, of course, must fill it almost to the bursting point.

As you will see, the symptoms of glaucoma are just what might be expected. The accumulated fluid produces hardness of the eyeball. Pressure upon the sensitive nerves causes great pain. The eye becomes inflamed, the vision grows dim and, unless relief is afforded, blindness will result.

Various operations are recommended. In most cases they are successful. There are remedies which can be dropped into the eye to reduce the tension and relieve the pain. Every case of glaucoma is one requiring the expert attention of a specialist in eye diseases. Copyright, 1929, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Envy Is Ignorance

There is a time in every man's education when he arrives at the conviction that envy is ignorance; that imitation is suicide; that he must take himself for better, for worse, as his portion; that though the wide universe is full of good, a kernel of nourishing corn can come to him but through his toil bestowed on that plot of ground which is given him to till.—Emerson.
